Life's Outstanding Events

TO EACH of us is given the memory of at least one outstanding happiness in the journey of life. An engagement, a wedding or perhaps some anniversary which is worthy of lifelong commemoration.

A Birks Diamond for such an occasion is a natural choice—its quality typifies perfection—while its beauty and durability fittingly perpetuate the event of which it is the chosen emblem.

A Birks Diamond is always the highest quality obtainable.

DESPITE SOFT TRACK GOOD TIMES MADE

Showing Made Today Augurs Well For Intercollegiate.

MANY SURPRISES.

Almost One Thousand Spectators Witness the Sports.

Good weather continued to hold for McGill yesterday when the annual track meet was held at the Percival Molson Stadium. Although cold for the spectators warming the cement seats of the stand, it was an ideal day from the runners' standpoint.

By two o'clock the onlookers had commenced to arrive, and by the time the first race was started three sections of the stadium were filled, the R.V.C. holding down its usual position at the east end. The increase of numbers over the attendance at the Freshman-Sophomore meet last week was very noticeable, almost a thousand people being present.

The showing of this year's track men augurs well for our success at Toronto next week. The entries were larger this year than ever before, the finish of most of the events were very close, and the times better than last year. New men are showing up, and 'Varsity will have to go better than in 1919 to figure amongst those present.

One college record was tied when Farthing, running easily and prettily, cleared every hurdle and crossed the 120 yards tape in 17 seconds. When Farthing takes off his sweater and gets a little competition we may see the Intercollegiate record broken, barring mishaps.

The high jump, as usual, was hotly contested. Don Foss won, clearing 5 feet 7 inches, and coming within an inch of the Intercollegiate record of 1906, and one-half inch of the McGill record. Antliff won the pole vault at 10 feet, and Gaboury made a very good second by coming back and clearing 10 feet 3 inches. As it is Gaboury's first shot at the pole vault, he made a very good showing, and under a week of Van Wagner's coaching, may get another eight inches.

Johnson, of second year, surprised the onlookers by winning three events. He came within two-fifths of a second of the hundred yards record, and soon after won both the 220 and 440. Hay came a close second, but showed signs of being in only fair condition.

It would seem that Hamilton is liable to find a more dangerous rival from within McGill than from 'Varsity or Queens. In the mile he paced Frederick around the course and finished in a long sprint which brought him well to the front. McGill might quite easily win two places in the mile at Toronto, as Hamilton is running with his same long and powerful stride which brought him first last year, while Frederick is running a very close second.

M. R. Wells brought the seniors' total up five points by beating Antliff and Kennedy in the running broad jump. Wells has a long stride and a powerful jump, and it looks to the idle railbird, who is usually so flush with his advice, that if he could tuck his feet up a little more, he could get the other ten inches which separate him from the record.

Kennedy won the 16-lb. shot, throwing 35 feet, three inches under the record. The hammer was the weakest event of the day, Dickie coming first with 74 feet. This is 48 feet short of the record, and unless some new man springs up next week, McGill will make a poor showing at swinging the lead.

The three mile race, terminating the day, provided a finish which brought every spectator to his feet. Five entries started, and all crossed the line. For the first lap all were bunched, but Antliff and Creelman soon drew away. For ten laps Creelman followed at Antliff's heels, and it looked as if the last mile would decide the race. But not until the 11th lap did any change take place. Creelman sprinted as he passed the line and led the way around the west bend. Down the straight both raced for second place. At the east turn Antliff forged ahead, and putting on a sprint, which Creelman could not duplicate, won by thirty yards. This performance was the more remarkable as Antliff had already competed in three jumps.

Owing to darkness the relay race between the years was called off. The result of the events was:

ASSOCIATION RIFLE SHOOT ON FOR TO-DAY

Shoot At Point aux Trembles Marks Revival.

PROMISING MATERIAL.

Executive Have Made Excellent Arrangements.

Twelve noon to-day marks the revival of a one-time flourishing club at McGill when rifle enthusiasts meet at the Arts Building preparatory to Pointe aux Trembles for the first shoot of the season.

The executive have been working hard and yesterday after completing arrangements with the Militia authorities themselves made a special trip to the ranges to make sure that all was in order.

It is hoped that there will be a large turnout. A number have already signed the roll of the Association, but others interested will be welcomed at to-day's shoot provided that they are willing to become members of the club. It is not necessary to be a marksman; enthusiasm is the essential requirement for membership.

The executive wish it clearly understood that this club is a civilian organization, and has no connection with the C.O.T.C. whose shoot is scheduled for Monday. Membership in the Rifle Association entails no military obligation other than the usual oath of allegiance and guarantee to protect Government property which has been issued to the club.

For this afternoon's shoot men are advised to bring raincoats and to wear old clothes. Should the weather be very unfavorable, the shoot will be postponed, but barring an actual downpour of rain the club will set forth on its excursion after the rifles and ammunition have been issued at the Arts Building.

The following men have enrolled to date, and are especially urged to be on hand:

R. S. O'Meara (captain).
H. W. Johnston.
J. L. Bieler.
C. B. Nash.

ROOTERS' PARADE.

Rooters are reminded that the Club will fall in at the Union at 1.30 o'clock on Monday afternoon to march in a body to the Stadium where they will boost for the Red and White in its match with the M.A.A.A. A section has been reserved for the club and it is to facilitate the entrance of the club and to prepare for several of the stunts that the rooters are asked to be on hand early.

SENIORS ARE WORKING HARD FOR BIG GAME

Keen Interest In Holiday Feature.

COPE & FLANAGAN OFF.

That M.A.A.A. Will Field Strong Team Is Certain.

With a practice at noon to-day, the Red and White Rugby squad will complete its training for the big game against the M.A.A.A., which will be played on Thanksgiving Day afternoon at the Percival Memorial Stadium. The line-up of the McGill squad will be announced following the practice, and in all probability will show the regular senior team pitted against the Winged Wheelers, with the exception of Flanagan and Cope. Flanagan is still suffering from knocks received recently, and will be saved until the 'Varsity game, while Cope is out of the game with a wrenched shoulder. The flying wing misjudged a charge at the "dummy" at yesterday's work-out, and lit square on his shoulder. He will probably be out of the game for several weeks.

That the M.A.A.A. will field a strong team against the Red and White is a foregone conclusion. The city club will be out to cop the championship of Montreal, and that they will give the McGill squad a lively time is fully anticipated. The line-up of the club team will not be known until after the M.A.A.A.-Ottawa game on Saturday, however. It is almost certain that among the fourteen will be several former McGill players, including Pringle Seath, Joe Gilhooley and Eric Parsons.

Keen interest is being taken in the holiday fixture, as is indicated by the fairly good advance sale of tickets. Led by the Rooters' Club, there will be a large crowd of McGill supporters present to help the team gain titular honors.

Yesterday the Red and White squad was put through another strenuous work-out. "Shag" has been in excellent form all week, and has not been mincing matters in correcting weaknesses in the play, and as a result of the drilling of the past five days the squad is in perfect condition. Still, there are a number on the casualty list, but not serious enough to prevent their taking part in the game on Monday.

Yesterday the team worked on the dummy most of the morning, and ended up with a game against the Juniors; and, right here, let it be stated that the third team certainly gave the Seniors a tussle, frequently breaking through the heavier "ace" squad for big gains.

Judging from the practice yesterday, it appears that with Flanagan off, the McGill half line on Monday will include Russell, Laffoley, and Wilson, with "Boo" Anderson at quarter and Andy Rutherford probably filling in at flying wing. Andy has been showing great stuff at practices, the diminutive player carrying the ball hard and speedily, has caught the eye of the enthusiasts for the past week.

Besides the regular line-men, Parsons, Lezier, Gamble, "Bones" Little, and Jack MacDonald are coming along fast, but still seem to lack the "pep" that is necessary to win Intercollegiate fixtures. Philpotts has been showing fairly well in the back division, and may be given a chance to break into the game on Monday.

Officials for the game have not yet been selected, but it is expected that a definite decision as to who will handle the whistles will be made this morning.

Y.M.C.A. "SING."

Have you ever got lonely on Sunday evening? You have been busy every week night. You have not had time to think—of home—the old folks—the old fireside—the comfortable atmosphere. But Sunday comes and these things rush back to your mind. They make you wish for company—for some place to go.

Freshmen, you have not met many students yet. There are some lasting friendships open to you. Here is your opportunity—Come to Strathcona Hall on Sunday night—after church is over—sit around the fire—listen to the music—meet others who have things in common with you. Have a pleasant social hour. Sing your old familiar hymns. Feeling all the time as free as you would in your own home.

There is no doubt that if you come once you will come always.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1920.

MONDAY'S GAME

Monday's game between McGill and M.A.A.A. is certain to be full of interest not only to members of the respective organizations but to every rugby enthusiast in Montreal. Last season, followers of the game were disappointed when these two teams, winners of their respective leagues, were unable to make arrangements for a meeting. All the more interest, therefore, attaches to the game and as neither team has suffered any material change in their respective strength, the outcome will give some idea of what would have happened last year.

The M.A.A.A. back division of last year is practically intact and there are not many new men on the line. Even with the changes which have taken place the Montreal line-up seems to be about on a par with that of last year. Considerable changes have taken place in McGill's personnel, but so far the showing made by the team seems to indicate that it will maintain the standard set by last year's champions.

In any case those who turn out at the Stadium on Monday are assured of witnessing a clean and closely-contested struggle and there is little doubt that the enviable record of both teams' good sportsmanship will be upheld.

May the best team win.

ENGLISH RUGGERS TO PLAY MONDAY

Practice Match Resulted In 3-3 Draw.

McGill English ruggers will play their first outside game of the season on Monday morning at 10.30 when they meet the Montreal team in an exhibition match on the Old Campus. This year the ruggers have a big turnout of players to select from and as a result will field a strong fifteen against the city team in the holiday fixture. No referee has been selected but it is expected that the whistle will be handled by Professor Whitham, who is a rugger enthusiast. McGill will take the field as follows against the Montreal Club: Full back, Helmcken; three quarters, McDougall, Kelly, Day and Gooch; halves, Clarke, Macintosh and Beveridge; forwards, Lochhead, Cleland, Palmer, Conington, Kemp, Buchanan and Lawrence. Spares—Lee, Bradshaw, Budden, McNamee, MacLean, Jones and Patterson. That the team might run over for a practice has been called at 12 noon. All men having club boots or sweaters are asked to hand in their tags by noon.

Yesterday morning the ruggers played a practice match when the Westerners met a combined team of Easterners and Old Country players, the game ending in a 3-3 draw, although the Easterners claimed a six three victory. The game was very fast and some excellent muffed for a first time fifteen was unshared. Kemp scored a try for the Westerners from the far West, while Macintosh scored the last try when the proposed house league of three teams representing the West, the East and the Old Country will be formed.

R. V. C. NOTES

CHEAP RATES

Provided that a sufficient number of students signify their intention of making the trip to Toronto to witness the McGill-Varsity Intercollegiate rugby fixture on October 23, a special reduced rate for the journey will be arranged with the railway company. There are many students who are keen to take the jaunt down to the lair of the Varsity squad that they might root for the Red and White, but to date the increased cost of fares seems to make the proposition too steep to be considered by most of the enthusiasts. If approximately 150 supporters of the team would agree to go providing they received a rate that would save them about five dollars, special arrangements will be made to transport the contingent to the Queen City. To this end the "McGill Daily" has opened a list and all those who would make the trip on condition that a cheap rate is obtained are asked to call in the Editorial office at the Union and sign their names.

Come on now rooters, all who can, sign up early, and let McGill have a strong following of supporters when the team takes the field against Varsity in what will prove to be the most critical game of the Intercollegiate series this season.

HOLIDAY GAVE OPPORTUNITY FOR PRACTICE

Tennis Players Getting Into Form.

CROCKER IS FIRST MAN.

He and Wright Played Fine, Little To Choose Between Them.

The holiday yesterday afforded the tennis players a good chance to get in some practice for the meet next Thursday and Friday. Our prospects for winning the Intercollegiate Singles this year look very fair, as Crocker, our first man, should be able to come through with the honors. He and Wright played a match yesterday morning which was undoubtedly the best game of singles that has been played at the college this year. Both men were getting their serves regularly, which speeded up the game very much. Wright played a trifle more at the net than his opponent, and did more overhead smashing. Crocker, on the other hand, played farther back, and relied more on the accurate placing of his drives. The first set went to Crocker, 6-4, and the second one, 10-8, which indicates how little there is to choose between these men. It was only after a hard struggle that Wright was finally defeated. Wright's game was not quite as steady as Crocker's, which caused the score to go as it did.

Three more games were played off in the second round of the tournament, the closest of these being the one between Macfarlane and Fortin. Both played rather slow, steady games, and seemed to be very evenly matched. Fortin finished up on the long end of the score, however, the sets being 6-4, 6-4. Carlyle had little difficulty in disposing of Common. The latter seemed to be a little out of practice, although at times he made some brilliant shots. Carlyle played a consistently good game, through the two sets, and managed to win by 6-0, 6-3. The third match played was that between Chisholm and Poulin. The former won by the score of 61-7-5.

There are still some members in the tournament who have not paid their entrance fees. These must be paid as soon as possible to the secretary of the club.

RIFLE PRACTICE WILL BE HELD

Trip To Pointe aux Trembles Monday.

Arrangements have been made for a party of McGill Cont. C.O.T.C. to proceed to the Rifle Ranges at Pointe aux Trembles on Monday, the 18th, and fire range practices 1 and 2, C. O.T.C. Regulations.

This party, for whom a special street car has been engaged to convey it to and from the Ranges, will meet on Fletcher's Field at the corner of Park and Pine Avenue, at 9.30 a.m., and it will be necessary for the members of the party to provide themselves with a pocket lunch, wear old clothes, and be on time at the place of meeting.

The Adjutant would be glad if the undernamed will meet him at the Orderly Room at 9 a.m. next Monday, to assist him in conveying the rifles and ammunition to the car:

R. V. C. STAGED ANNUAL EVENT

Sophs Treated Verdant Freshies To Big Time.

The Solemn Rite of Initiation was performed on Friday morning at R.V.C., when the lordly Sophs, clad in deepest black, administered justice to the Freshettes of '24.

The Freshies were somewhat tardy in arriving, perhaps due to the fact that they had not allowed time enough for the braiding of their hair in ten or more tight braids, each terminating in a green bow. Besides this, they were required to wear short gingham dresses and socks, symbolizing their youth and ignorance.

After the roll call, the Freshies filed through the lower door, and pitiful shrieks for mercy echoed through the stately halls, as each victim was blindfolded and handcuffed.

Then they were required to do penance for their misdeeds by walking unshod over a path strewn with peas. After ascending and descending the stairs on their hands and knees, and rolling along the corridors, they were required to shake the bony hand of Death.

Still the unrelenting Sophomores pushed the victims on to the Torture Chamber, where, after walking the plank, they were revived by an ample dose of Freshies' Delight (?). In order to give the Fresh-ones a glimpse into the future, they were warned of impending doom by a fearsome witch.

Being properly subdued, they then took their oath of allegiance to the Sophomores, by swearing on the dictionary, to humbly obey their commands. The masks of the Freshies were then removed, and the considerable Sophs, noting the pallor of their complexions, kindly added a coat of charcoal. As the Sophs were then becoming a little bored, they decided to amuse themselves by commanding some of the Freshies to enact the death scene of Julius Caesar. Although their knowledge of Shakespeare was rather appalling (as the quoting of "The Boy Stood on the burning deck," in place of Caesar's last words), on the whole, the presentation was fairly creditable. After the customary reading of the rules and the teaching of the college songs and yells, the Freshmen were the guests of the Sophs at a feed in the Common Room, which was tastefully decorated as a nursery. A bib was tied around each baby Freshie to protect her dress. Their excitement reached its pitch when they were each presented with an all-day sucker. The proceedings were then brought to a end by mutual expressions of good-will.

STUDENTS BEAT PROFESSORS IN GOLF TOURNEY

Good Weather Proved Big Factor.

MULTI-COLORED DRESS.

Students Made 44 Points; Professors 22 Points.

Sharp at nine a.m. the first of the matches in the annual golf match teed up at Dixie. And from then on until shortly after ten there was a continuous line-up. The bunker on the first hole proved a magnet for many of the initial drives, although a number sailed gaily by the 200 yard straight. The morning was ideal for golf, with a bit of nip in the air. This "nip" was no doubt partly responsible for the sartorial decorations indulged in. Sweaters of all kinds, colors and conditions were in evidence, while the lower garments varied from dirty grey bags and army breeches to flannels fresh from the family electric iron. Some of the "bloodes" indeed were fully clad after the Scotch fashion, with cap, stockings, tie and shirt to match their Tweeds and Donegals. These, too, some of them, dared to disport themselves with lady caddies and new golf balls.

However, all was quiet on the links during the match. No reports of Sinn Fein attacks on conquering professors came in, nor were any words heard not previously in the golfing vocabulary. About noon the first matches finished up, and it was early seen that the gods favored the students. Their superior organization was to tell against the experience of the faculty. It was said that they played their strong men against the weak professors. If this be true, it would seem that "Shag" had been consulted as to how best victory could be obtained. When the final tally was made, it was found that the staff had gathered 22 points, while the Students had amassed 44. Thus, out of nine annual matches, the Students had won their third, there being five victories to the credit of the faculty with one draw.

Then, on the club verandah ensued the usual nineteenth hole talk. One professor avowed that he had his man away down, until in playing across a pond, from some fifty yards from the hole, the latter bounced his ball four times on the bridge and then holed out. One of the losing students gave an excuse that every time he was about to sink a putt, a worm made a cast on the line of march and deflected his ball. A leading medical student who succumbed badly, swore that every time he made a good shot, he found his ball in a hitherto unperceived bunker. One professor, when the real state of affairs became apparent, even announced that revenge, although delayed until Christmas, would then be sweet.

After everyone had convinced himself that he should have played a much better game, all adjourned for lunch, which was evidently thoroughly appreciated. One of the club members, who was present, objected strenuously, however, to all the chits being signed "McGill," as this happened to be his own name.

Over the smokes, it was voted by all that the day had been thoroughly enjoyed, and already conversation drifted to the match to be held next year. The students participating wish to state their appreciation of the hospitality of the professors. The kindness of the Royal Montreal Golf Club, in permitting these tournaments, is also much appreciated by all the golfing fraternity of the university.

The list as published below is not entirely in order of playing strength. The scoring of the matches was on the Nassau system, one point on each nine holes, and one on the match.

NEXT WEEK AT THE THEATRES

PRINCESS.

An attractive programme has been selected by the management of the Princess Theatre for Thanksgiving Week. Dancing, acrobatic feats, songs and comedy are combined. Headlining the bill will be Vernon Stiles, the well known tenor, late of the Metropolitan and Chicago Grand Opera Companies. Stiles is said to be the best ballad singer in vaudeville, his programme being composed principally of ballads. Recently he was in a piece written for him by Victor Herbert, in which he scored an emphatic success. It is called "Eileen." One number, "I Never Knew" was written for him by Elsie Janis and Irving Berlin. This he includes in his programme at the Princess Theatre next week.

Hay West, late of Ed. Wynn's delightful musical comedy, "Carnival" who is an extra attraction, will give a song recital. Her dainty personality, her keen sense of possibilities of songs that tell stories and her charming voice and manner, ensure her a hearty welcome wherever she goes.

Until now Laura Pierpont has co-starred with Taylor Granville, together they have given to vaudeville a series of exceptional one-act plays. Now Miss Pierpont is going it on her own. Edgar Allan Woolf wrote her play. Taylor Granville engaged her supporting company and staged the play for her. The comedy is entitled "The Guiding Star," and Miss Pierpont appears in four different characters, giving a careful and artistic portrayal of each. Harry J. Conley appears in his new skit, "Rice and Old Shoes." Mr. Conley portrays a "rube" of a decidedly up-to-the minute class, his modern twists, bright dialogue and the assistance of Naomi Ray and an elaborate scenic setting make "Rice and Old Shoes" a fine feature.

"The Piano Movers," McDewitt, Kelly and Quinn, is a lively, entertaining act, rehearsed then and there. Frank Neville & Co. offer a pretentious dancing offering, in which some specialties, enhanced by picturesque settings and costumes, add to the attractiveness of the offering. "A Bit of O.S. Russia," presented by Samaroff and Sonia, is a picture of song and dance of their native land. Both are exceptional dancers, being associated with the Ballet of the Royal Court at St. Petersburg before that famous institution closed its doors.

The Eugene Duo, athletes of repute, perform some new and astonishing gymnastic feats, and also contribute in no small measure to the comedy of the bill.

ORPHEUM.

The Orpheum Players next week re-introduce a character that thousands already know through the stories, "Cappy Ricks." It is doubtful if a more delightful character could be imagined than the weather beaten old sea captain whom Peter B. Kyne has well nigh immortalized, and while "Cappy" has won a legion of friends in print, his appearance on the stage has multiplied this host of admirers.

The reason for the instantaneous success which the play "Cappy Ricks" achieved is not difficult of explanation. "Cappy" in the magazine stories is a true to life drawing of a real character, for the author spent months along the San Francisco waterfront, mixing with the men of the sea, and it was a weather-beaten old retired sailing master who gave Mr. Kyne the inspiration for his creation of the "Cappy" stories. This characterization gleaned along the docks he wore into the stories, and Edward E. Rose, one of the most prominent dramatists of the day, selected the best of the stories and constructed a play that rivals the most successful comedies of the decade.

Apart from the delightful character sketches in which the play abounds there is a charming story. "Cappy Ricks" is a tale of high finance on the high sea, with more legitimate cause for laughter than could be found in a dozen comedies of the past ten years. It is a story of an old sea captain who was always right and never wrong, and of a young and handsome first mate, whom secretly the old captain loved and who loved Cappy's daughter, but whom before the world Cappy endeavored to bulldoze. There is a charming love theme through the story that lends just the right amount of flavor, and altogether "Cappy Ricks" ranks high among the successful comedies of recent years.

LOEWS.

One of the most novel "kid" revues on the vaudeville stage will be seen at Loew's next week in "Buddies," a juvenile melange of song and dance, featuring five "kute, komik kid kut-ups." Plenty of clever comedy is introduced in the act and it is heralded as a first class tabloid entertainment. Henrietta Craig, that eminent artist, will be seen in an exceptionally clever one-act comedy entitled "The Girl in the Dark." She is supported by a talented cast. Edna May-Foster has a surprise novelty that is bound to please; Behla Pearl will be heard in an artistic "songalogue" with witty sayings interpolated, and Vic Stone and the Moyer Sisters will offer an artistic conception of style, music and terpsichorean art.

One of the strongest photo-dramas ever screened at this theatre will be seen in "The Fortune Teller," starring that prominent and beautiful actress, Marjorie Rambeau. The powers of psychic persuasion and the strength of mother love are the essentials in the story, which relates the experiences of a young mother who descends to the lowest depths of degradation, through the brutal propensities of a man. Her regeneration, brought about by her love for her son, form the theme of a beautiful story.

"Uneasy Feet," an entirely new form of comedy, will undoubtedly attract attention. The whole story is told by the feet only, obviously a departure from the usual stereotyped variety of comedy.

Loew's British-Canadian News Weekly will contain some unusually interesting events next week.

GAYETY.

"The best laughing show on the circuit," is what is promised at the Gayety theatre next week when "The Bon Ton Girls" are to be the attraction in the new two act melange entitled "Breaking into Society." The piece is described as a highly laughable satire on the 400, replete with comedy situations and humorous dialogue. John Barry and George Douglas are the principal comedians with the "Bon Ton" organization again this season. Barry is famous with burlesque audiences for his inimitable comedy characterizations and the manner in which he handles the words "I'll Kill Him" during the course of a performance. He is credited with being able to deliver that particular phrase in 100 different intonations and inflections. Douglass shares the feature honors of the company with him. Other burlesque favorites in the cast are Jean de Lisle, Lou Barry, Laura Havez, Walter La Foye, Mickey Feeley and Arthur Bernard.

The engagement here will open with the matinee performance at the Gayety on Monday and there will be a daily matinee and night performance thereafter.

NEW GRAND.

Classics have been written about newspaper work. They have been classics of action but have failed to reflect the actual atmosphere of a newspaper office. Plays have been based upon the romances which are daily happening in the "game" of gathering and disseminating the news, but they have also failed in giving a correct impression due to the limitations of the speaking stage. Now Marshall Neilan, the motion picture director, has braved the satirical criticism which the newspapermen heap upon those who offer an incorrect depiction of their craft, by producing a picture founded entirely upon the gathering of all the news connected with one of the most startling events which ever took place in a small city, "Go and Get It." It is the title he has given to it. It is the instructions which the city editor gives to the reporter who unravels the mystery that has balked the police. It is not a fantastic idea for a newspaperman to accomplish such a thing. In the recent Elwell murder mystery in New York City, the work of a newspaperman in finding a valuable witness in Ireland after a two weeks' search

YESTERDAY FINAL FOR SURGEONS

Last Of the Clinics In the Afternoon.

CONVOCATION — NIGHT

Fellows and Honorary Fellows Admitted.

The last official meeting of the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons was held in St.
James Church last night at eight o'clock, when the eighth convocation took place. After the invocation was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Symonds, the candidates were presented to the president by W. J. Mayo. Six hundred and nineteen in all, including a number of candidates from South America, were admitted to the fellowship of the Association. Following the admission of the Fellows, the Honorary Fellows were proposed by various members of the Board of Regents and received by the president. The presidential address was received with appreciation and warm applause by the large crowd in attendance. In it Dr. Armstrong made a plea not only for better surgery and more ethical procedure, but also for constructive work from the point of view of conserving the nation's most valued resources, her men and women.

The Fellowship address, by Sir William Taylor, "Taylor of Dublin," was in the nature of a brief history of the Royal College of Surgeons of Ireland. Unlike the American College of Surgeons, this college prepares students for license to practise, and has power to revoke the license of any licentiate convicted of unethical conduct. Sir William closed with warm thanks to the College and to their hosts on behalf of the delegation from Great Britain.

Yesterday afternoon the last special clinical demonstration of this season was held in Windsor Hall.

Albert Peyron, M.D., of the Pasteur Institute, Paris, delivered a most instructive paper on the "Origin and Comparative Pathology of Tumors of the Testis." His work has been done largely on horses and dogs, and he has been sent over by the French Government especially to attend the convention of French Surgeons of North America.

Prof. Oertel, of McGill, discussed the paper, paying tribute to the great importance of Dr. Peyron's investigations, and alluding especially to the great difficulty of that kind of work.

Following this, Dr. W. E. Gallie, M.D., of Toronto, spoke on "Demonstration of Pathological Changes in Bone Regeneration." He had investigated bone grafts on dogs at different intervals from the time of transplantation. He had found that in a short time the bone cells of the graft, having no circulation, naturally died, but around the edges of the graft, where the lymph from the surrounding tissues bathed the transplanted bone, some of the cells did not die. Through all the apertures in the graft capillary vessels grew, and accompanying them were proliferating osteoblasts, which absorbed the dead material and replacing it with new bone. In this manner, in almost eight weeks the graft was turned into a soft, spongy bone, and at this stage, if care were not taken to prevent violent exercise, a fracture might take place.

O. J. Thomson, M.D., of Canton, then spoke on "Some Surgical Conditions Met With in South China." He gave some striking examples, picked from 65,000 cases operated upon in the Canton General Hospital. Some excellent lantern slides were also exhibited.

In discussing the paper, Geo. G.
Davis, M.D., of Chicago, commented on the frequency of cancer of the cheek in the Philippines and other Eastern countries. He explained that this was due to the fact that the natives chew a mixture of lime and betel nuts and leaves, which caused the growth.

F. E. McKenty, M.D., F.R.C.S., of Montreal, read a paper on "Blastomycosis," and the programme was concluded by a discussion of this subject by Dr. J. L. D. Mason, of Montreal.

ST. DENIS.

Next week at the St. Denis Theatre the headline attraction for the vaudeville end of the bill will be Boland & Devarney, two charming young girls in comedy songs and patter. Neapolitan Due, operatic singers of high note; Bud Snyder & Co. in one of the fastest bicycle acts in vaudeville today; Eddie & Hilda in a comedy ring act; the Philmers in a comedy juggling and variety turn. The feature picture for the week will be "The Servant Question," starring William Collier.
The story is about a rich family who are always in trouble trying to secure the necessary servants around the house. It is full of comedy throughout and ends with the servant of the house falling in love with the millionaire daughter. A Mack Sennett comedy and the St. Denis week-end crowd out the bill.

R. V. C. ANNUAL TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Miss D. Campbell Wins the Championship.

Owing to unfavorable weather conditions, the R.V.C. tennis trials, which were to be played off on Fri-

was also partially due to the unusually large number of competitors, thirty-two in all. The list is as follows:

I. Feilders, C. Robertson.
Second Year—Z. Slack, A. Roy, M.

Of these, Miss C. Robertson, Miss E.

finals in the contest for the individual championship. The two strongest players from each year, forming the class team, who are to play in doubles for the class championship, are Miss Elliot and Miss Robertson, representing the first year; Miss Leggat and Miss E. Campbell the second; Miss Aylen and Miss Rough the third, and Miss D. Campbell and Miss Olding the fourth. Of these matches, only one, namely, that between the Senior and Junior teams, has been played off. It is hoped that, if the weather is fine, the match between the Sophomores and Freshmen will be played on Monday morning at 10 o'clock, and the finals at two-thirty in the afternoon.

While the court was heavy, owing to the rain of Thursday, the style of the playing in Friday's tournament was such as to encourage the fond hope of Ladies' Intercollegiate Tennis Tournaments.

The first match was played between Miss D. Campbell and Miss L.
Aylen. While the latter is a very steady player, she lost to Miss Campbell's swifter serve and more clever racing. Then followed the semifinal match between the Juniors and Seniors. Miss D. Campbell and Miss M. Olding, playing for the Seniors, began the match brilliantly, winning the first game and foreshadowing their success. Yet Miss Rough, who,

by remarkable contortions, frequently gets over a brilliant serve, and Miss L.
Aylen, who seldom misses a ball, proved a formidable combination and, throughout, hotly contested the superiority of their opponents. While there were a few love games in the beginning of the match, the resolution of each team grew keener in the playing, and, towards the end, the losers never scored less than thirty, and "deuce" games became frequent and prolonged. This was, undoubtedly, one of the most interesting matches witnessed in the tournament, and, for once, the players received the enthusiastic applause of a fairly large number of students.

The semi-final match in the singles between Miss C. Robertson and Miss E. Campbell proved to be a very even one, each of the players invariably winning her own serve. It was not till the end that Miss E. Campbell showed her power in volleying, and,
by some rapid returns, took the match from Miss Robertson at a score of 9-7.
Miss Robertson, however, can serve a very swift ball, and, while she is not so strong on the return as Miss Campbell, her college career is just beginning, and her chances of some day appearing in the finals are bright.

It was unfortunate that, owing to the number of matches played during the morning, neither of the competitors for the individual championship finals were fresh for their great attempt. This is especially true of Miss E. Campbell, who had just finished two vigorous matches in the singles. That she was tired and discouraged was clear in the first three games, during which she hardly scored at all, but her fighting spirit revived, and in the fourth game she began to pick up. During the next few games both players were at their best. The serving was uniformly good, the placing of the balls skillful, and the volleying excellent. The ball flashed across the court from one racket to the other with lightning rapidity. Miss E. Campbell rapidly gained on her opponent until the score stood at 5-4, in favor of Miss D.
Campbell, and the excitement was intense. In the following game, however, Miss E. Campbell unfortunately twice served a double fault, her self-confidence leaving her and her weariness returning, she afterwards steadily lost ground. Miss D. Campbell, on the other hand, kept up her brilliant play; her volleying was unceasingly swift, and more than once she showed her superiority to her opponent by the strength and precision of her back-hand return, in which Miss E. Campbell is especially weak. With the courage born of despair, Miss E. Campbell made a splendid attempt to recover her advantage in the thirteenth game, and, from then on, the play was rapid and the score close. The plucky little fighter, in the last game, made it "deuce" no less than four times. The championship went to Miss Doris Campbell by reason of her cool play and her strong, swift stroke.
